

Tone Tone

at the watering hole

Tone Tone the elephant was very excited as they stomped along to the watering hole with their mother and father elephant.

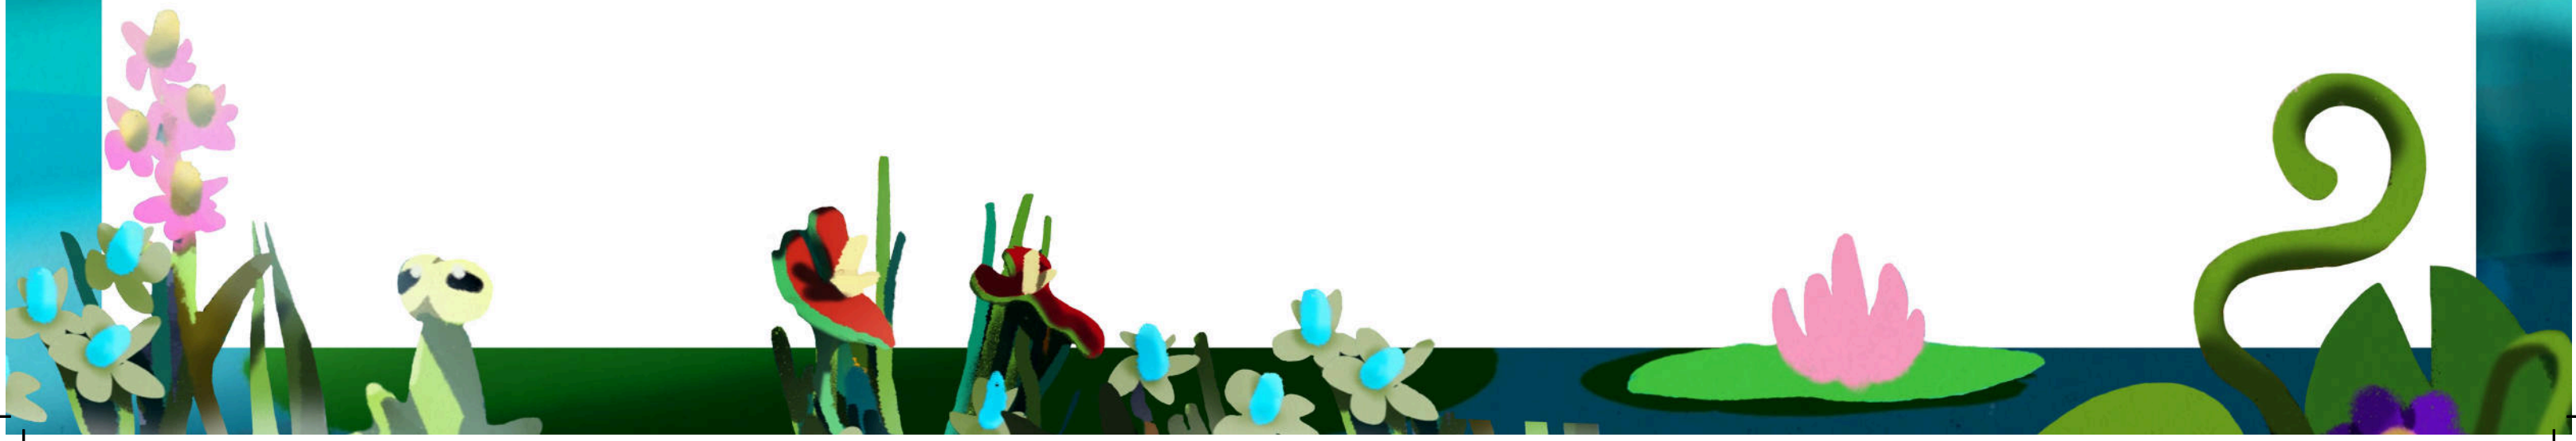

Tone Tone was going to spend the entire day learning about all the different animals that visited the watering hole too.

Father elephant had told Tone Tone that while all of the other animals were different, they were all special and had an important role in the forest alongside them.

Tone Tone glowed yellow with happiness and was excited to learn more!

So when they arrived at the watering hole, Tone Tone said “To the tigers first, Phay Phay” and stomped straight over to them.

“Hello Tigers” said Tone Tone
“Can you tell me about yourself?”

“We are strong and brave. We are the Courage of the Forest” roared the Tigers closest to Tone Tone.

Next, Tone Tone visited the Deer.

“Hello Deer” said Tone Tone

“Can you tell me about yourself?”

“We are imaginative and positive.
We like to daydream. We are the Hope of the Forest” sang the Deer closest to Tone Tone.

Next Tone Tone visited the Monkeys.

“Hello Monkeys” said Tone Tone
“Can you tell me about yourself?”

“We’re mischievous and fun. We like to try new things! We are the Curiosity of the Forest” laughed the Monkey closest to Tone Tone.

Next Tone Tone visited the Owls.

“Hello Owls” said Tone Tone

“Can you tell me about yourself?”

“We are quiet and observant. We look out for others. We are the Respect of the Forest” cooed the Owls closest to Tone Tone.

Next Tone Tone visited the Rabbits.

“Hello Rabbits,” said Tone Tone

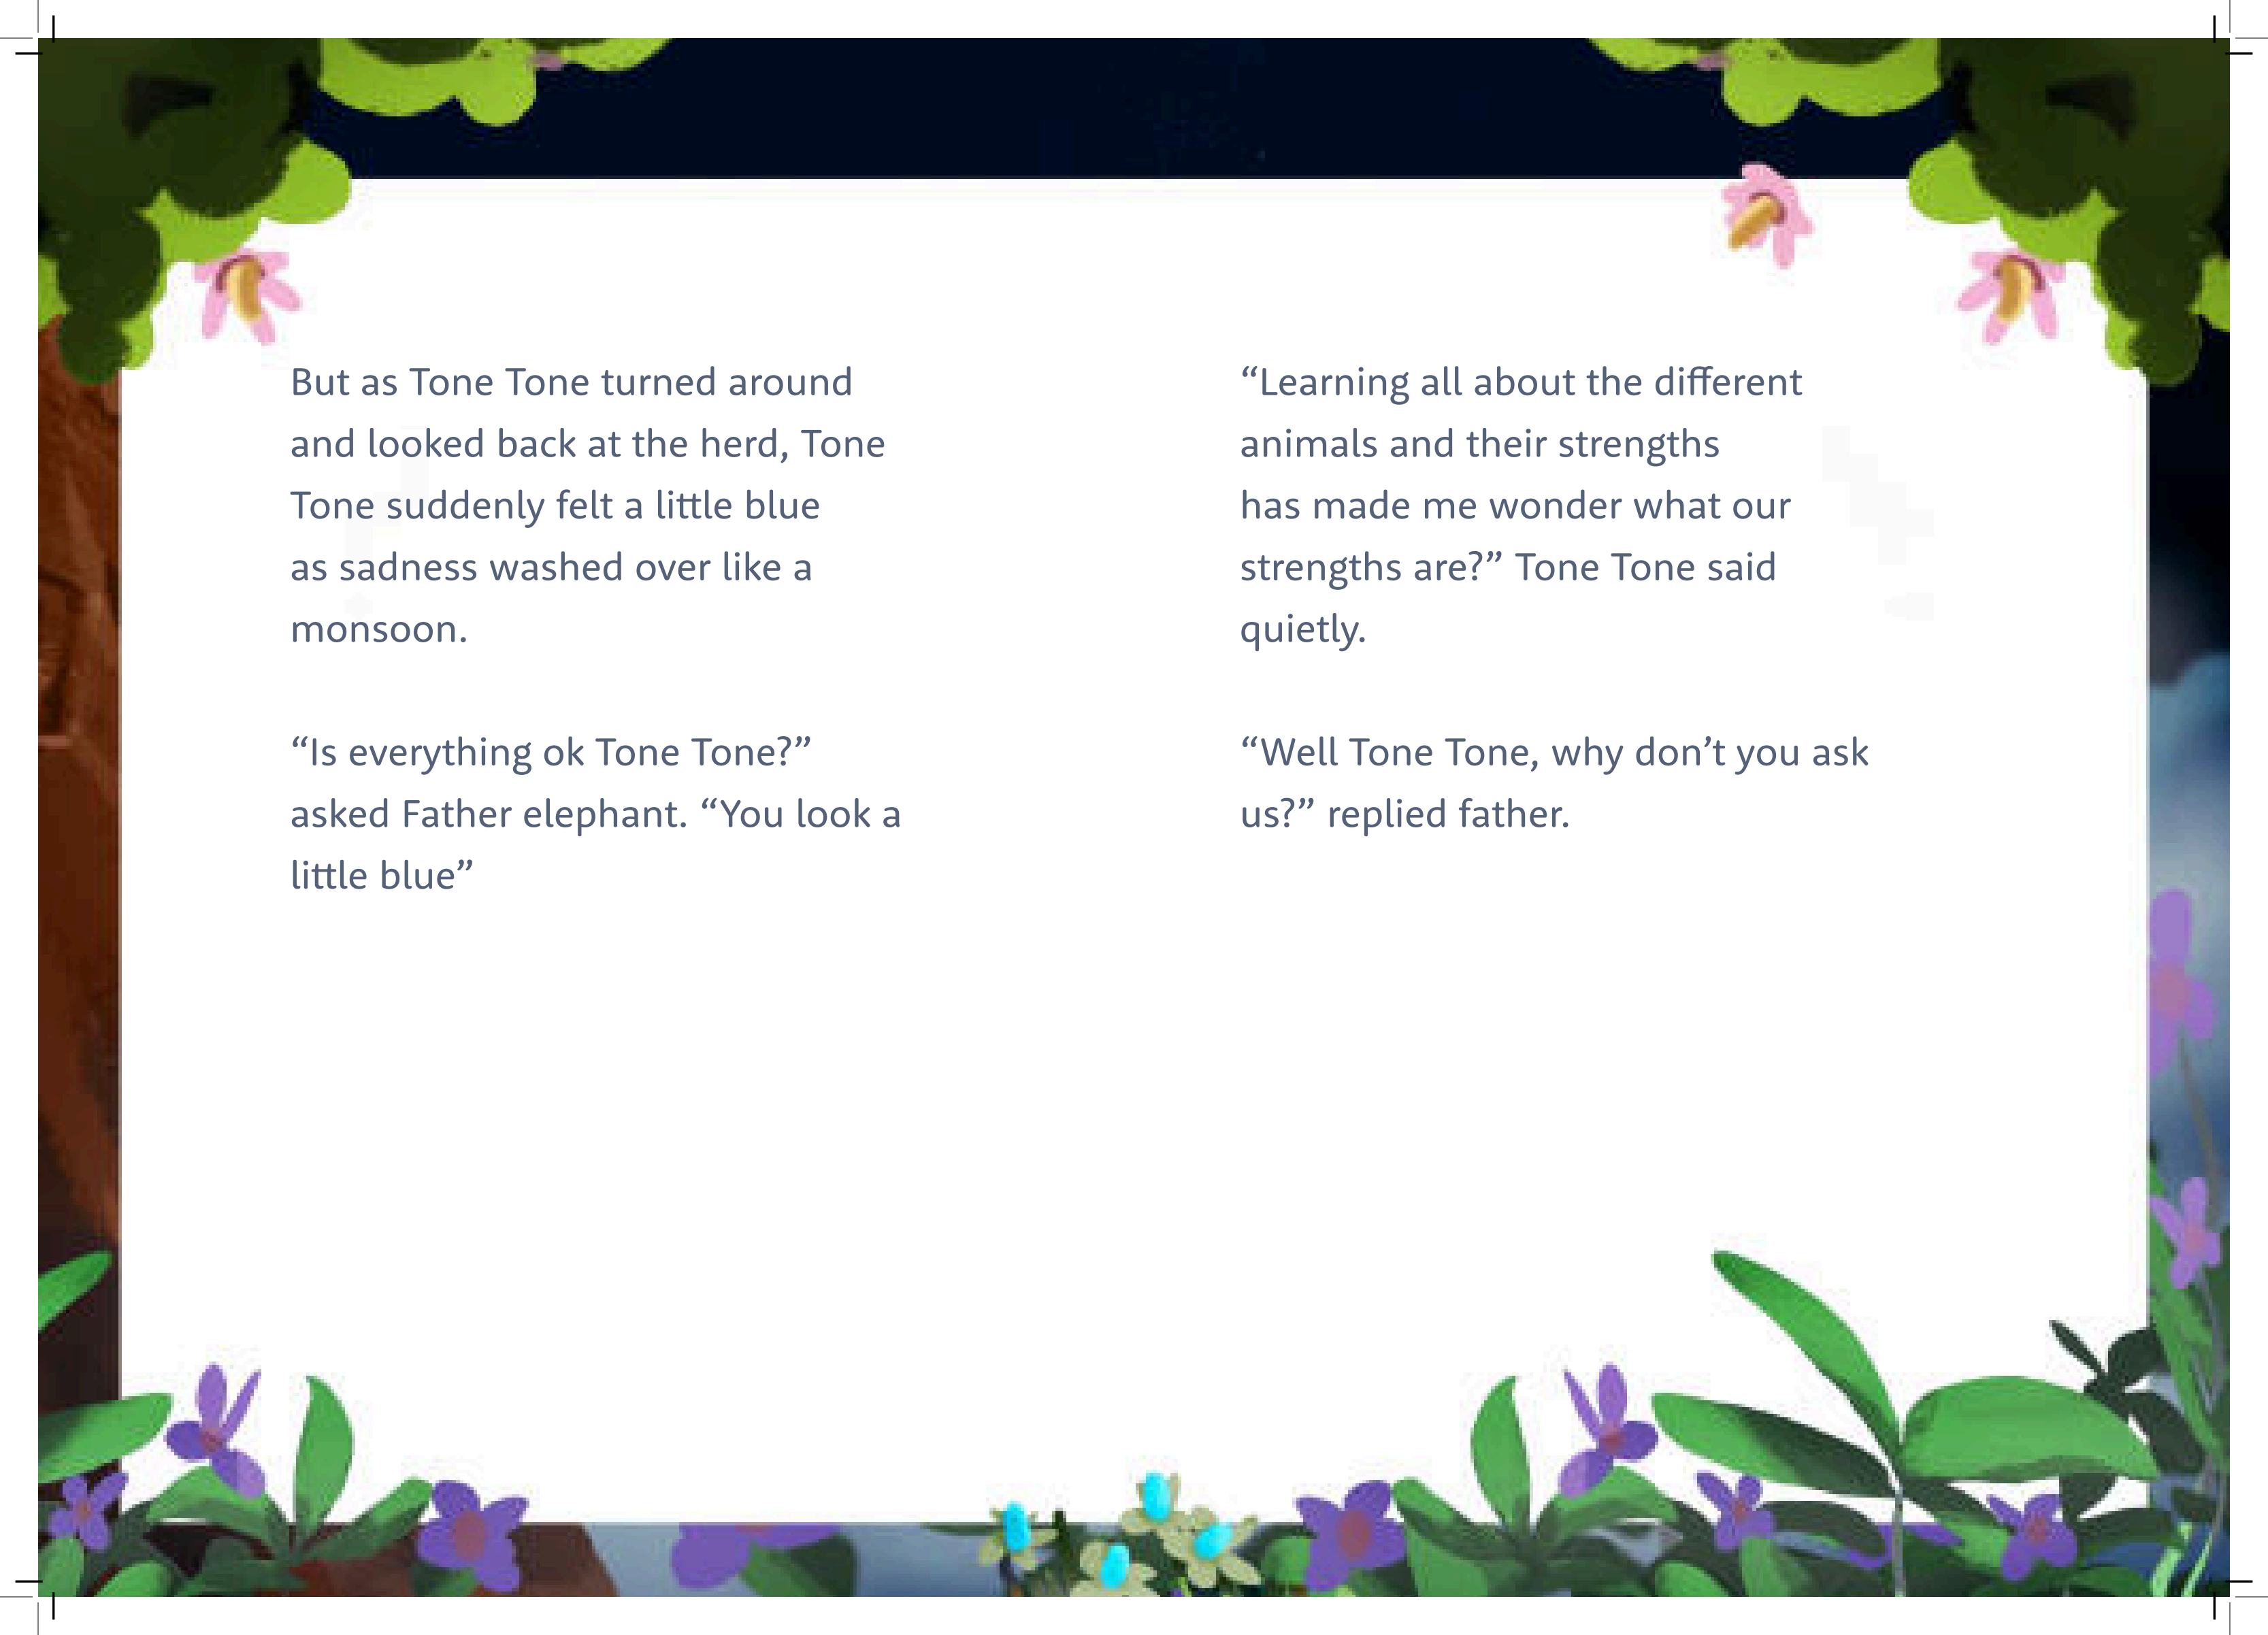

“Can you tell me about yourself?”

“We are social and caring. Our ears are good at hearing. We’re the Listeners of the Forest!”

Tone Tone felt so happy, and had learned so much about all the different animals and their strengths.

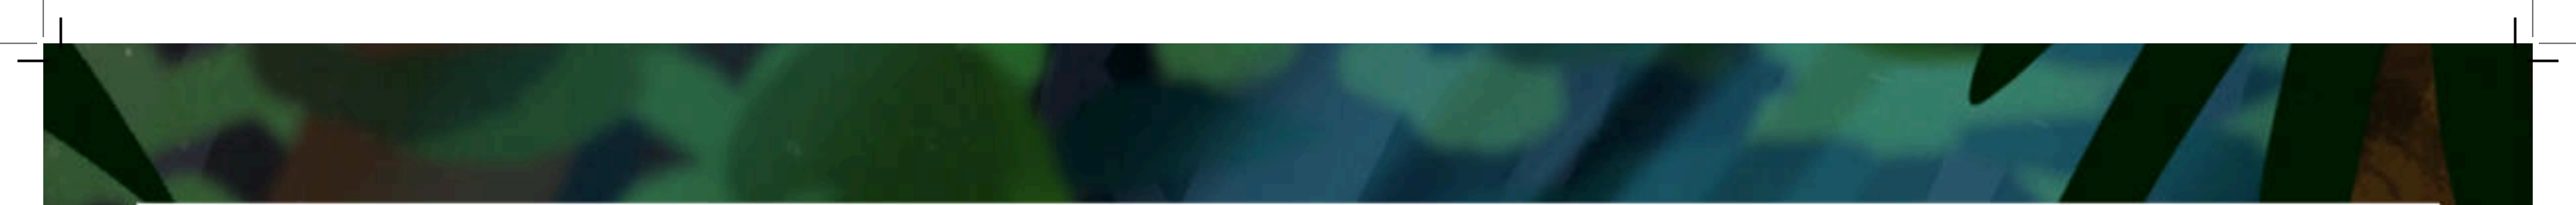

But as Tone Tone turned around and looked back at the herd, Tone Tone suddenly felt a little blue as sadness washed over like a monsoon.

“Is everything ok Tone Tone?” asked Father elephant. “You look a little blue”

“Learning all about the different animals and their strengths has made me wonder what our strengths are?” Tone Tone said quietly.

“Well Tone Tone, why don’t you ask us?” replied father.

So Tone Tone slowly stomped back over to the herd and said “Hello Elephants. Can you tell me about yourself?”

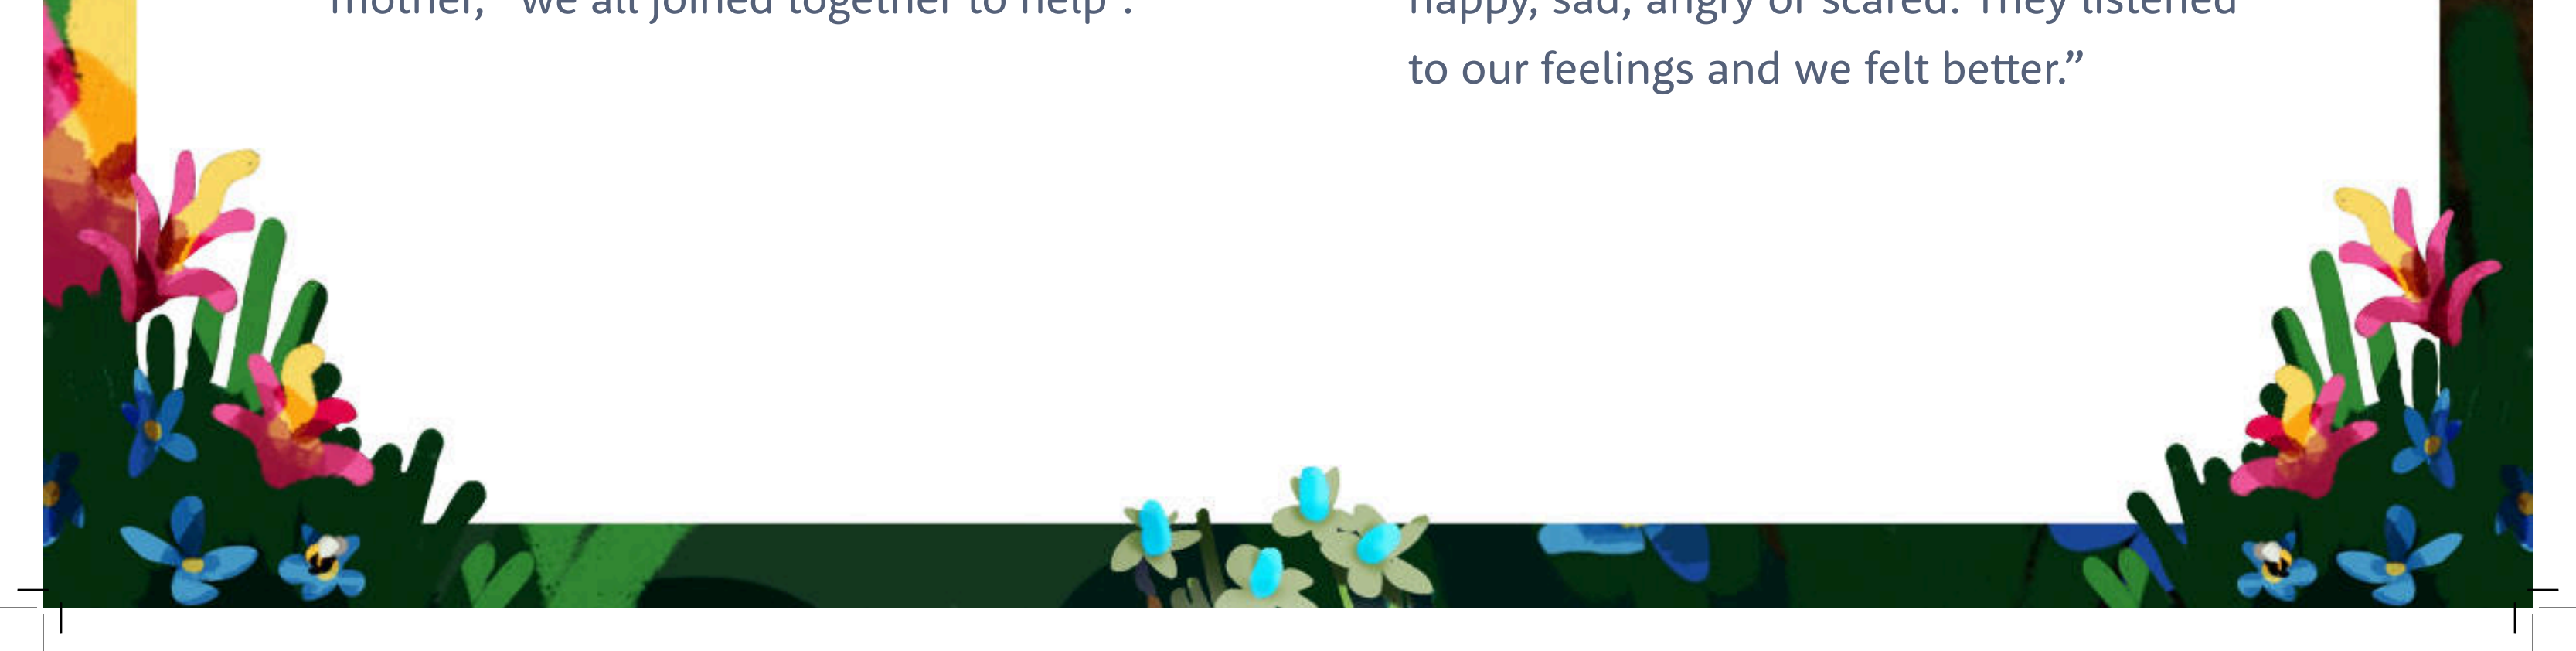

“We are tough and when things change we find a way to be ok. We can recover from difficulties because we stick together and help each other. We are the resilience of the Forest!” said mother.

“When we had to move homes” said mother, “we all joined together to help”.

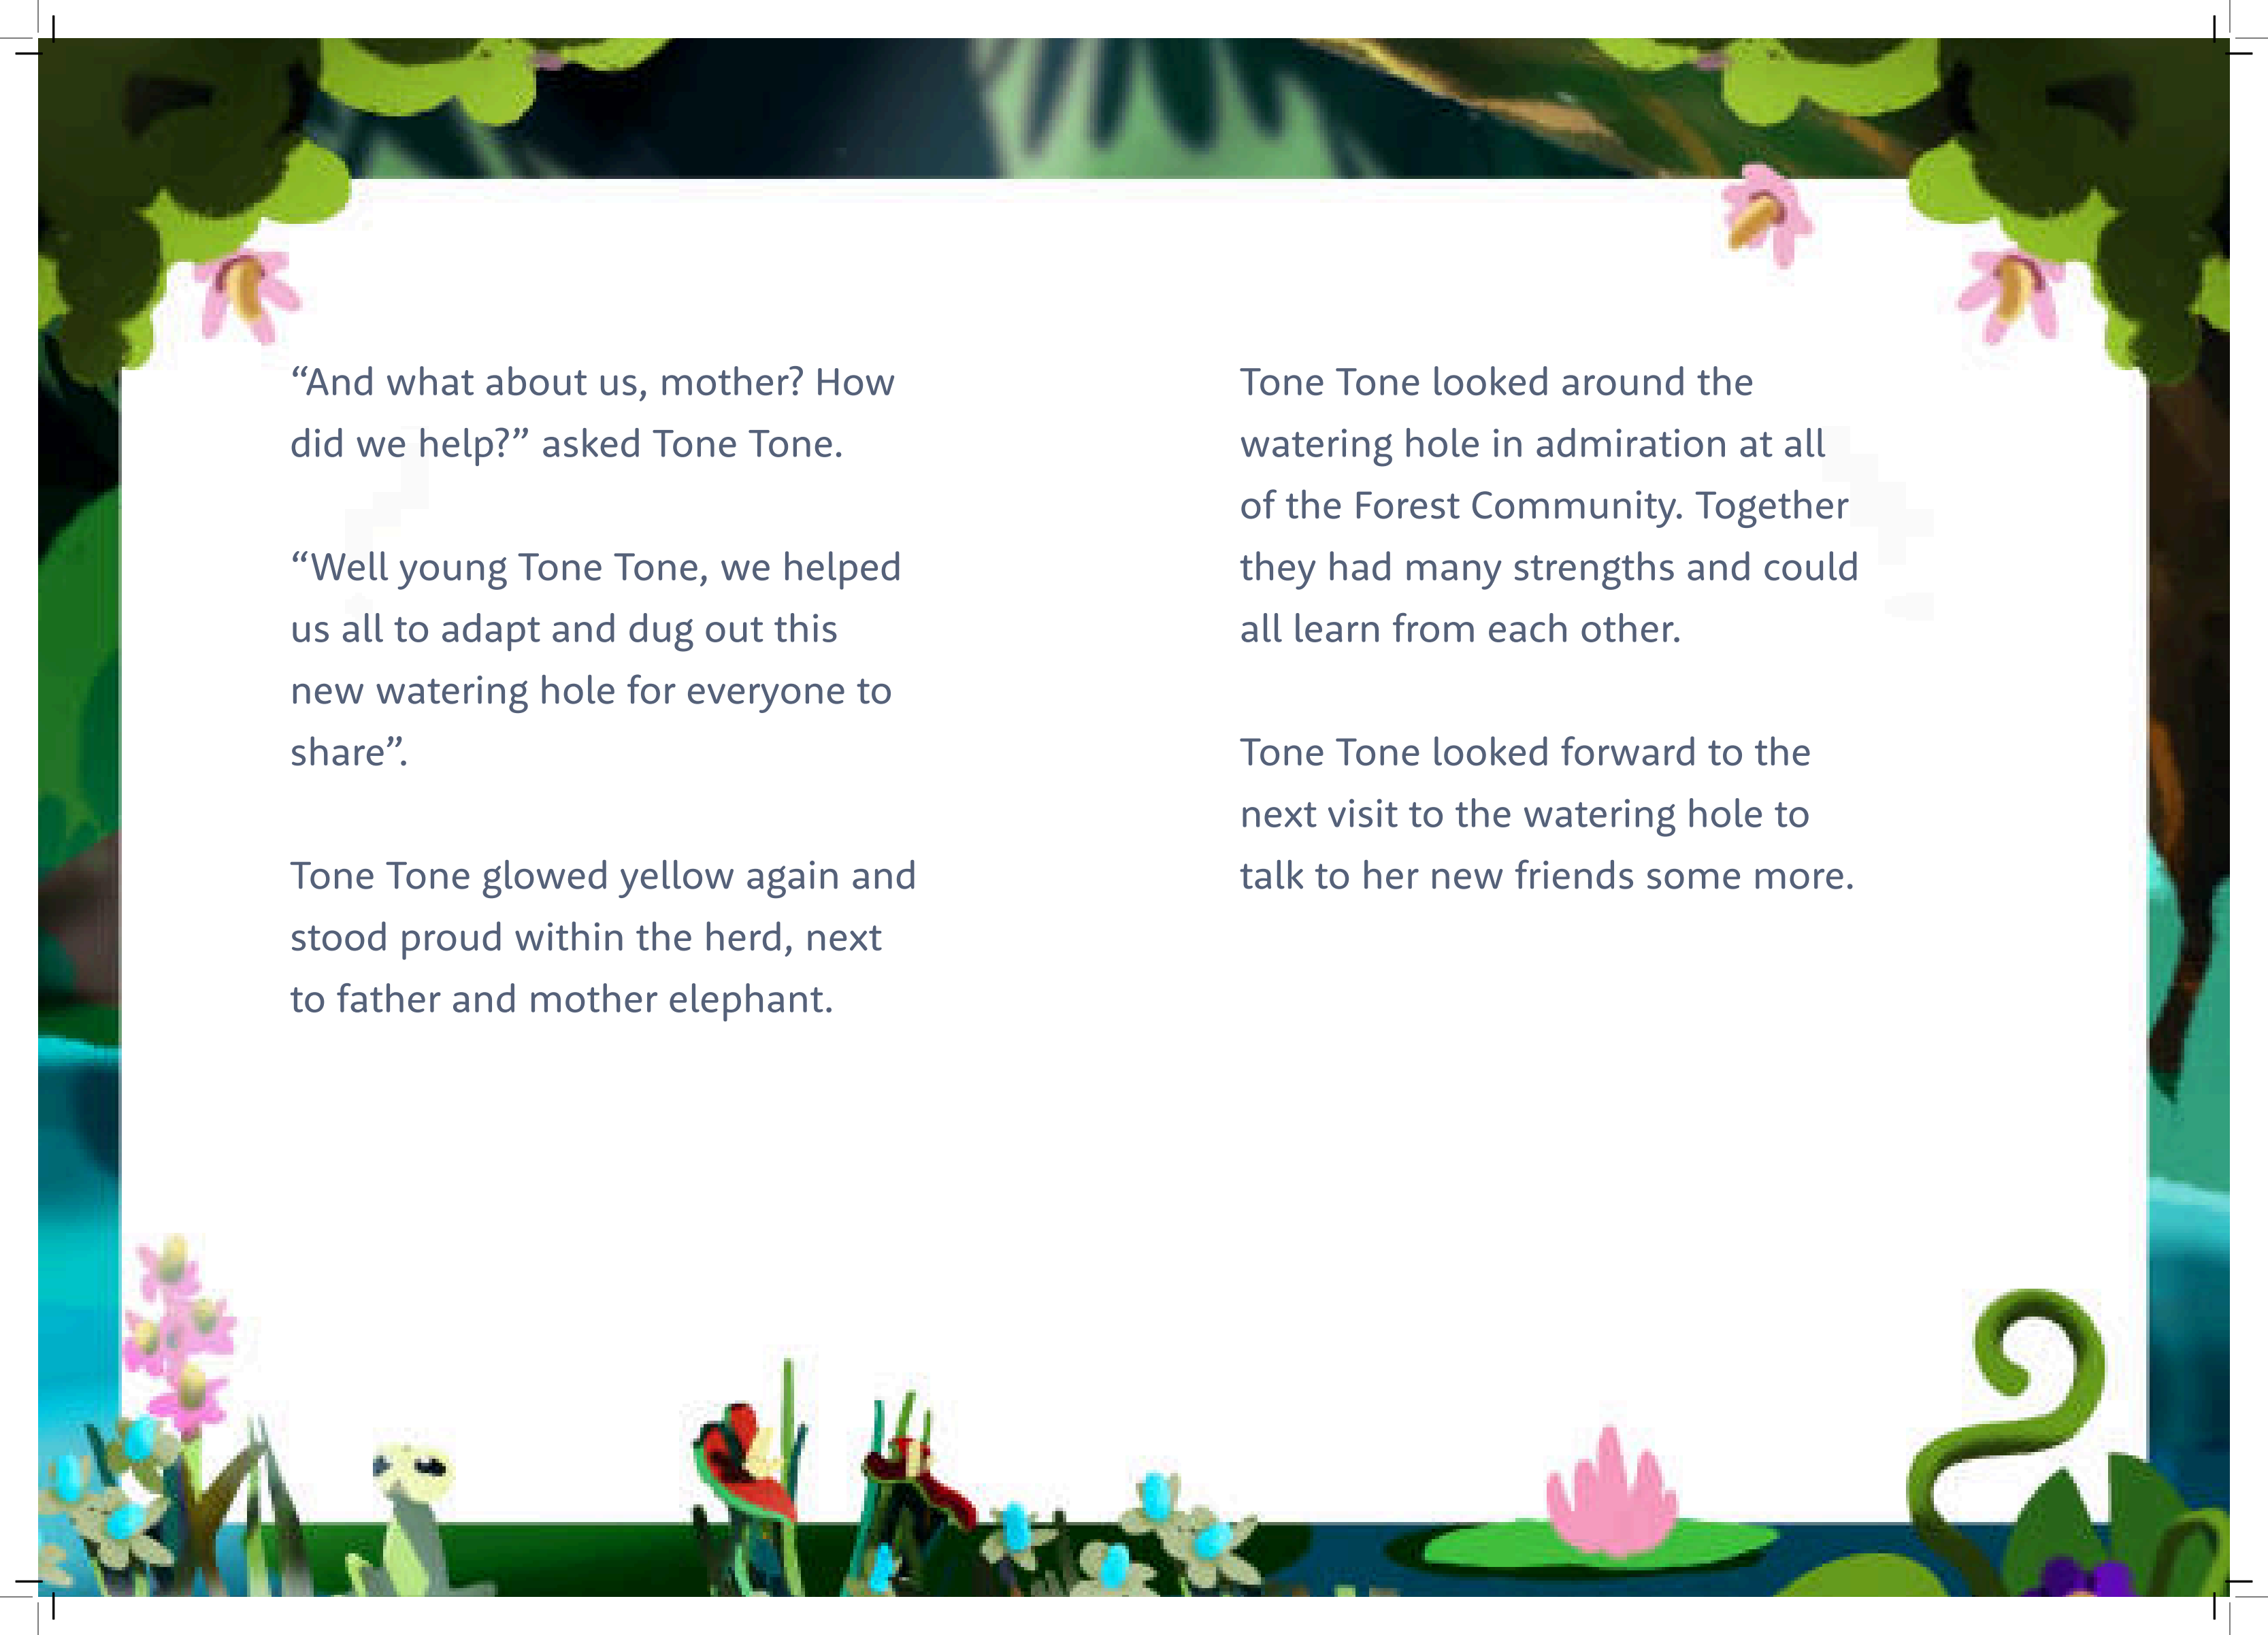

The Tigers used their courage to help guide us, and the Deer gave us hope by staying positive.

The Monkeys used their curiosity to find us all a new home and the Owl made sure we all had respect for each other's needs as we settled into our new place.

And the rabbits, oh the rabbits. They listened to us all, whether we were happy, sad, angry or scared. They listened to our feelings and we felt better.”

“And what about us, mother? How did we help?” asked Tone Tone.

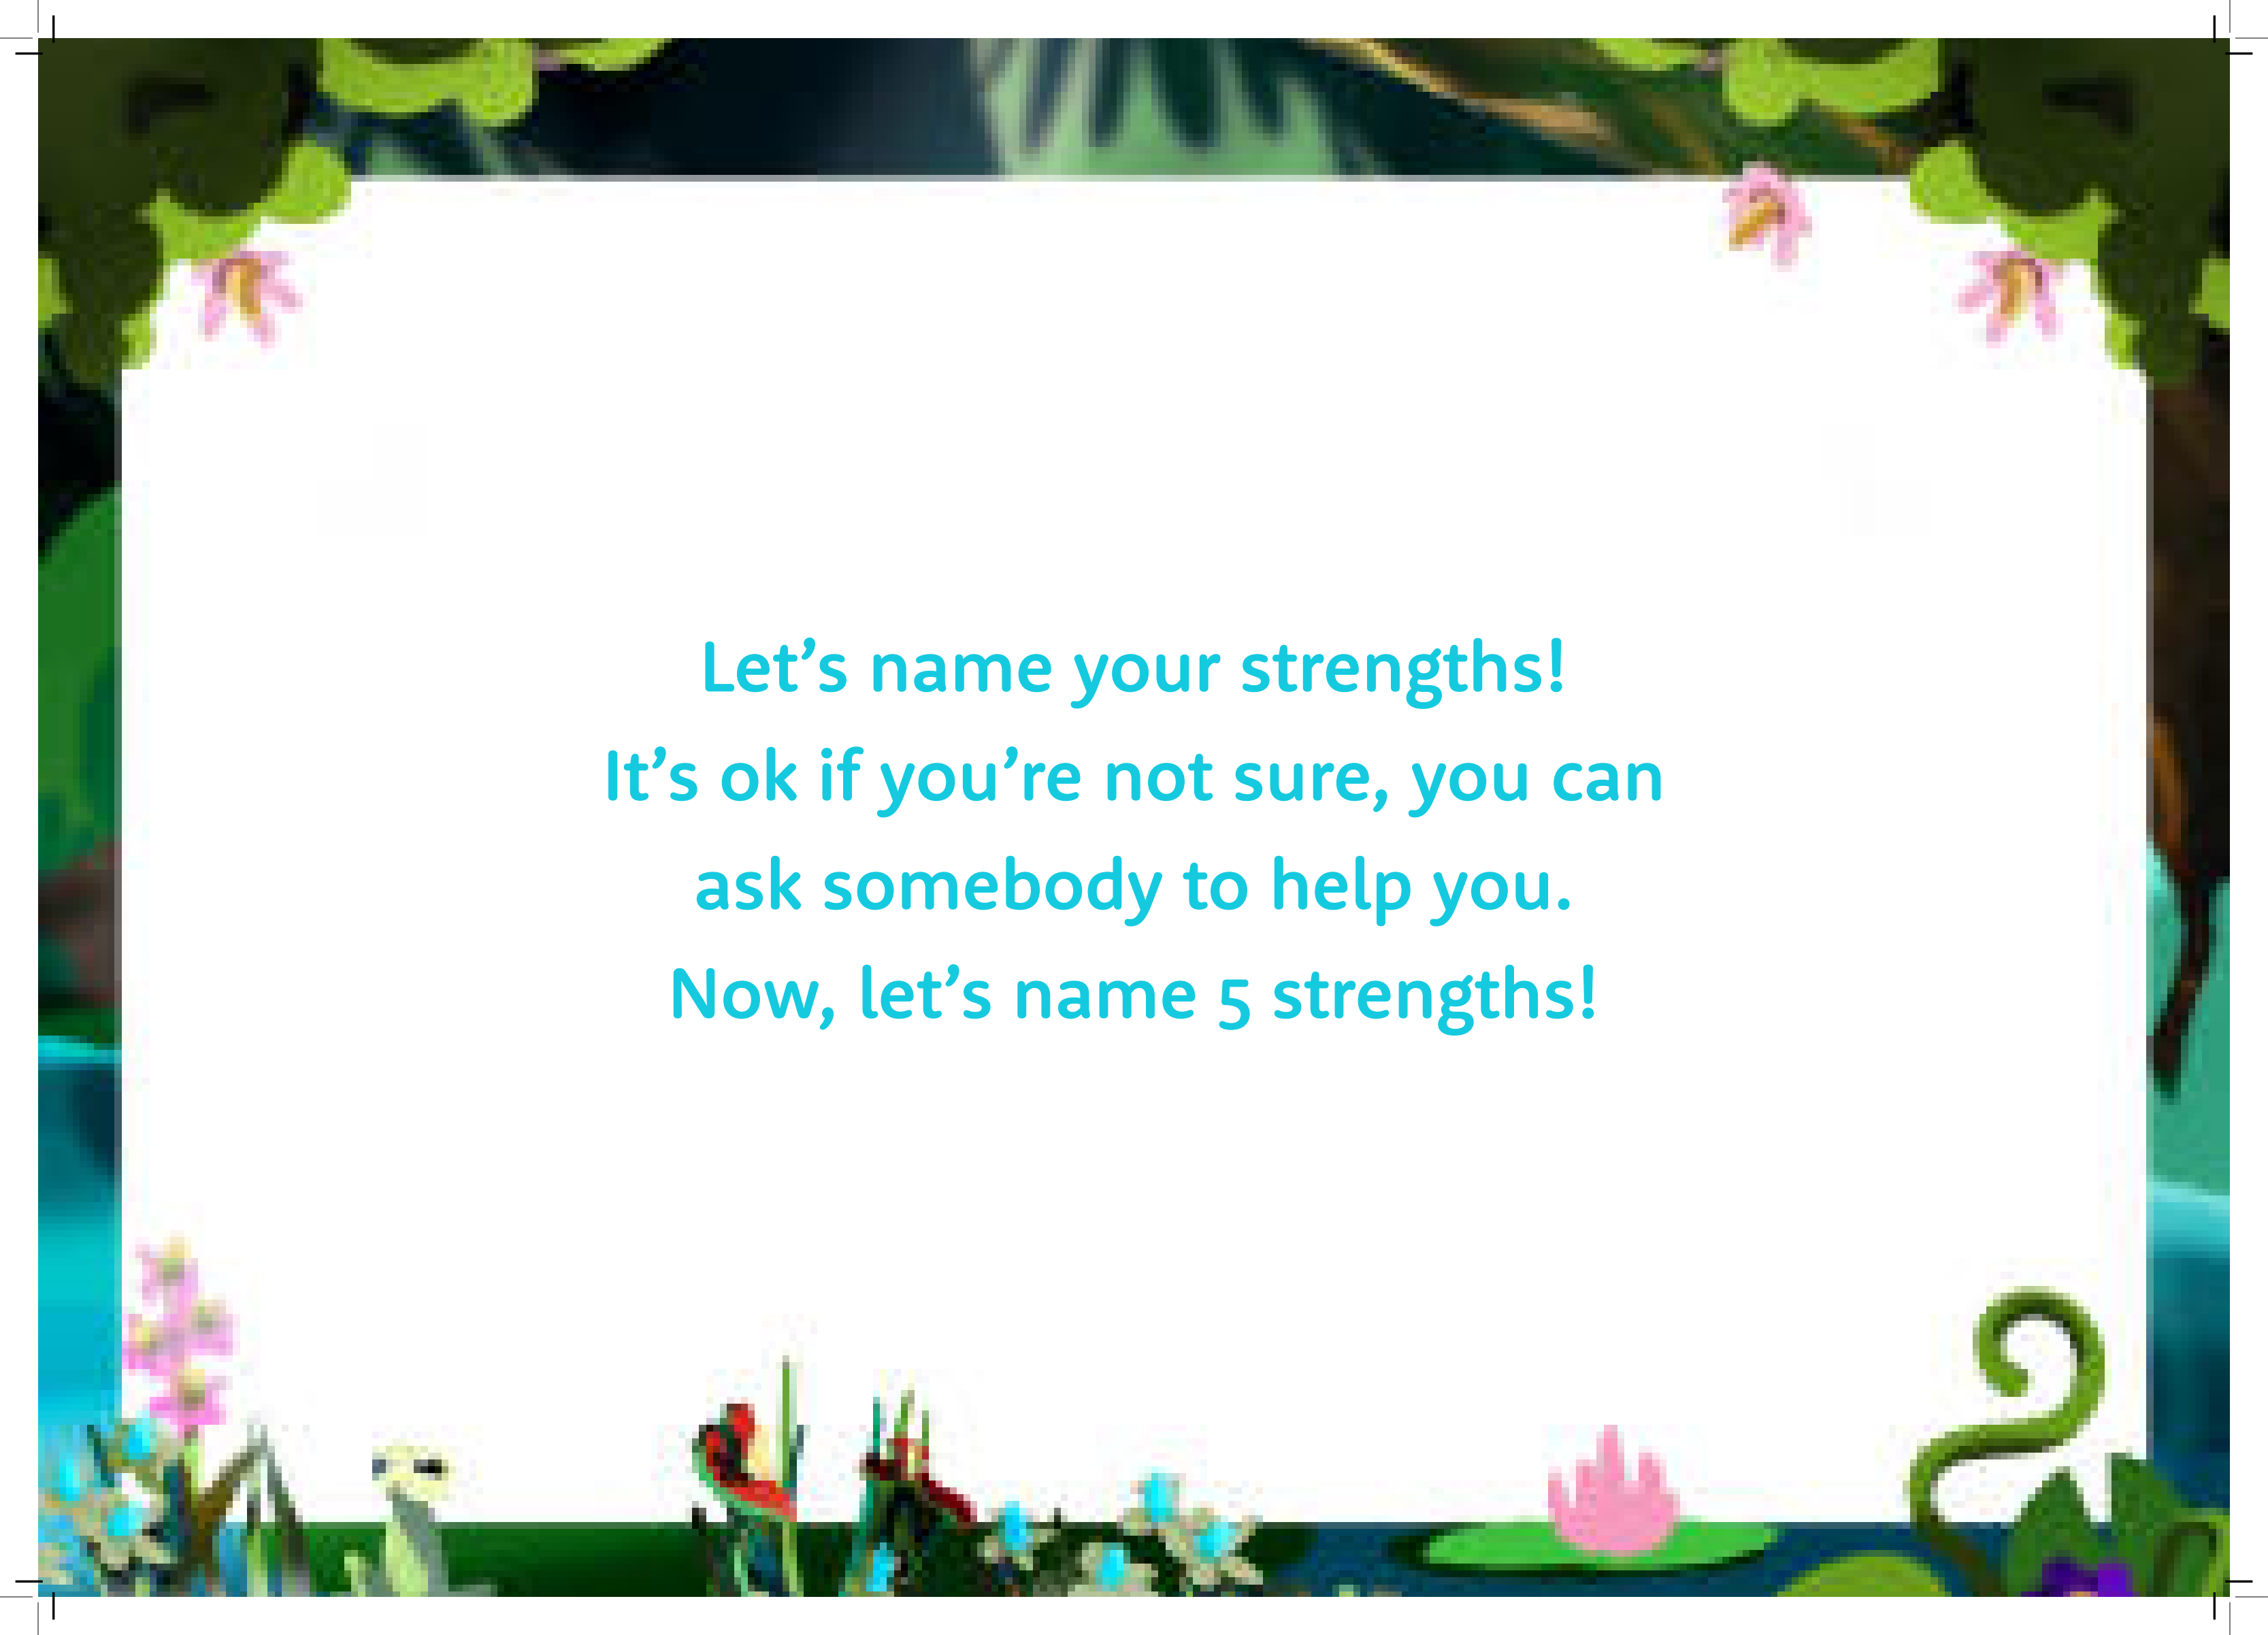

“Well young Tone Tone, we helped us all to adapt and dug out this new watering hole for everyone to share”.

Tone Tone glowed yellow again and stood proud within the herd, next to father and mother elephant.

Tone Tone looked around the watering hole in admiration at all of the Forest Community. Together they had many strengths and could all learn from each other.

Tone Tone looked forward to the next visit to the watering hole to talk to her new friends some more.

Let's name your strengths!
It's ok if you're not sure, you can ask somebody to help you.
Now, let's name 5 strengths!

Great, well done.
Now can you do the same for a friend or a family member?
